Noribachi Featured on Forbes' List of America's Most Promising Companies

Premier LED manufacturer listed as one of the top 100 companies.

LOS ANGELES -- Noribachi is proud to announce that they have been featured on Forbes' list of "America's Most Promising Companies". The leading US-based LED manufacturer stands out amongst the others as the only featured company from both the materials and LED lighting industries. In addition, their CFO and co-founder, Rhonda Dibachi has been featured on Forbes' list of "Women Who Built Outstanding Companies".

Noribachi continues to be a ground breaking force in the lighting industry and is the premier provider of custom-made LED lights for commercial and industrial applications. Noribachi combines their unique technology with the idea of the internet of things, creating a synthesis of lighting with various sensors connected through Internet Protocols, pushing what was once a standalone physical object into the interconnected world of instant information and usage.

"We strive to push the boundaries of imagination with our products, offering custom high-end technology solutions to our customers that bridge the newest in ideas with elegant design," says Esther M. Santos, Chief Operating Officer. "Our inclusion in Forbes' list is more proof that what we're doing works. We're excited to continue to create custom products that exemplify the digital lighting revolution."
